Cologne Bonn adds third Moroccan link

Cologne Bonn Airport confirms it will be adding another new city to its route network as the airport announces a direct link to Agadir. Welcoming Air Arabia Maroc's twice-weekly service on 1 October, the German airport will establish its third connection to Morocco as the service joins existing links to Nador and Marrakech.

Michael Garvens, Chairman of the Management Board, Cologne Bonn Airport, commented on the new service: "We are delighted to be able to offer our passengers an additional attractive destination in Morocco with Agadir. Anyone who wants to feel the sun again when autumn begins in Cologne, can utilise Air Arabia Maroc's low-fare, non-stop connection to North Africa."

Providing Cologne Bonn's passengers with an additional service to Morocco, Air Arabia Maroc notably adds the airport's sixth direct route to North Africa, considerably boosting links to the region from the German gateway. As a result of this expansion Cologne Bonn will offer over 600 weekly seats to Morocco this winter.
